

1. Donatella Versace

Donatella Versace, an iconic figure in the fashion industry, assumed the role of Chief Creative Officer of Versace, following the tragic passing of her brother Gianni Versace in 1997. Renowned for her bold designs and innovative contributions to high fashion, Donatella has been a driving force in shaping the aesthetic direction of the brand. With a keen sense of style and a commitment to pushing boundaries, she has played a pivotal role in maintaining Versace's status as a symbol of luxury and glamor. Donatella Versace has used her influence to foster collaborations with other influential designers and artists, further solidifying the brand's cultural relevance. Outside the committee, Donatella has established connections with prominent figures in the entertainment industry and has been a fixture on red carpets globally. Her attitude towards previous decisions and events reflects a dedication to preserving the legacy of Versace while embracing evolving trends in the dynamic world of fashion.

2. Tommy Hilfiger

Tommy Hilfiger, a fashion mogul and founder of the renowned Tommy Hilfiger Corporation, revolutionized American fashion with his preppy, classic designs. With a career spanning decades, Hilfiger has shaped the landscape of casual luxury, building a global empire. As a key figure in the fashion industry, he has not only shaped trends but also fostered collaborations with diverse artists and influencers. Tommy Hilfiger's powers extend to strategic business decisions, brand development, and creative direction. Outside the committee, Hilfiger has strong ties with the music and entertainment industry, reflecting his commitment to cultural influences in fashion. Hilfiger's attitude towards past decisions and events reveals a visionary approach, embracing change while staying true to the core values of his brand.

3. Vera Wang

Vera Wang, celebrated for her exquisite bridal and evening wear designs, is a prominent figure in the fashion world. With a background in figure skating and journalism, Wang transitioned into fashion, becoming synonymous with elegance and sophistication. Serving as a testament to her design prowess, Wang has crafted bridal gowns for numerous high-profile weddings. As an entrepreneur, she has expanded her brand beyond bridal wear, showcasing versatility in her creative endeavors. Within the committee, Vera Wang's powers lie in her influence over fashion aesthetics, trends, and her commitment to sustainable practices. Outside the committee, Wang has connections with elite social circles and the world of sports, reflecting her diverse interests. Her attitude towards past decisions and events underscores a commitment to timeless elegance while adapting to contemporary fashion demands.

4. Christian Louboutin

Christian Louboutin, a distinguished shoe designer, is the creative mind behind the iconic red-soled heels that have become synonymous with luxury and style. As the founder of his eponymous brand, Louboutin has redefined footwear, blending traditional craftsmanship with avant-garde design. Within the committee, Louboutin wields influence over discussions related to footwear design, craftsmanship, and the intersection of fashion and art. Outside the committee, he maintains relationships with artists, celebrities, and influencers, showcasing the cultural impact of his creations. Louboutin's attitude towards past decisions and events reflects a commitment to artistic expression and the celebration of individuality in fashion.

5. Stella McCartney

Stella McCartney, a trailblazing fashion designer, has distinguished herself by championing sustainable and cruelty-free fashion practices. As the founder of her eponymous brand, McCartney has been at the forefront of the eco-friendly fashion movement. Her designs seamlessly blend ethical considerations with high fashion, challenging industry norms. Within the committee, McCartney focuses on discussions related to sustainable practices, ethical sourcing, and the environmental impact of fashion. Outside the committee, she engages with environmental activists, showcasing a commitment to a holistic approach to fashion. McCartney's attitude towards past decisions and events underscores a dedication to creating a positive impact on both the fashion industry and the planet.

6. Orsola de Castro

Orsola de Castro, a passionate fashion designer and co-founder of Fashion Revolution, has dedicated her career to promoting sustainability and ethical practices in the fashion industry. As a leading voice in the sustainable fashion movement, de Castro works towards creating awareness about the environmental and social impact of fashion. Within the committee, her influence extends to discussions on sustainable practices, transparency in the supply chain, and the role of fashion in social responsibility. Outside the committee, de Castro collaborates with environmental organizations and advocates for positive change in the fashion industry. Her attitude towards past decisions and events reflects a commitment to transforming the industry into a force for positive change.

7. Amber Valletta

Amber Valletta, a supermodel and vocal advocate for sustainability in fashion, has transcended traditional modeling roles to become a powerful voice for ethical practices. Valletta has used her platform to raise awareness about the environmental and social impact of the fashion industry. Within the committee, her influence spans discussions on ethical modeling practices, sustainable fashion promotion, and the role of models as advocates for positive change. Outside the committee, Valletta collaborates with environmental organizations and fashion brands committed to sustainable practices. Her attitude towards past decisions and events reflects a commitment to reshaping the modeling industry into a force for positive environmental and social change.

8. Gisele Bündchen

Gisele Bündchen, a globally renowned supermodel and environmental activist, has utilized her influence to promote sustainable practices in the fashion industry. Beyond her successful modeling career, Bündchen is known for her commitment to environmental causes, advocating for climate action and conservation. Within the committee, her influence extends to discussions on the environmental impact of fashion, sustainable modeling practices, and the role of the industry in climate awareness. Outside the committee, Bündchen collaborates with environmental organizations and promotes sustainable lifestyle choices. Her attitude towards past decisions and events reflects a dedication to using her influence for positive change in both the fashion industry and the world.

9. Cameron Russel

Cameron Russel, a prominent model and advocate for diversity and inclusion in the fashion industry, has been instrumental in challenging industry norms. Russel uses her platform to address issues related to representation, body positivity, and equal opportunities in modeling. Within the committee, her influence spans discussions on diversity in fashion, inclusive modeling practices, and the industry's role in promoting positive body image. Outside the committee, Russel engages with organizations working towards diversity and inclusion in various industries. Her attitude towards past decisions and events reflects a commitment to reshaping the modeling industry into a more inclusive and empowering space for all individuals.

10. Thom Browne

Thom Browne, an esteemed fashion designer, currently serves as the Chairman of the Board of Directors for the Council of Fashion Designers of America (CFDA). Elected to lead the CFDA, Browne is committed to fostering creativity and empowering emerging designers within the fashion industry. Known for his avant-garde designs and innovative approach to fashion, Browne has been influential in shaping the industry's creative foundation. Within the CFDA, his powers include strategic decision-making, mentorship initiatives, and shaping the direction of American fashion. Outside the committee, Browne maintains connections with established designers and influencers, reflecting his dedication to the growth and evolution of the industry. Browne's attitude towards previous decisions and events underscores a commitment to promoting originality and creativity in fashion.

11. Anna Wintour

Anna Wintour, a legendary figure in the world of fashion journalism, holds the prestigious position of Editor-in-Chief of Vogue and Artistic Director of Condé Nast. Wintour's influential career spans decades, shaping fashion discourse and trends globally. Her role encompasses setting editorial direction, curating fashion content, and influencing the cultural narrative. Within the committee, Wintour's powers extend to discussions on fashion media, trends, and the intersection of fashion and culture. Outside the committee, she has relationships with designers, celebrities, and cultural icons, reflecting her impact on shaping the fashion landscape. Wintour's attitude towards past decisions and events reflects a commitment to innovation and maintaining Vogue's status as a fashion authority.

12. Imran Amed

Imran Amed, the visionary founder and CEO of Business of Fashion (BoF), has played a pivotal role in reshaping the fashion industry's media landscape. Amed's platform provides insights, analysis, and resources for industry professionals globally. Within the committee, his influence spans discussions on fashion journalism, business trends, and the role of media in shaping industry narratives. Outside the committee, Amed engages with fashion leaders and entrepreneurs, reflecting his commitment to driving positive change in the industry. His attitude towards past decisions and events underscores a dedication to transparency, innovation, and fostering a more sustainable and inclusive fashion ecosystem.

13. Alessandro Michele

Alessandro Michele, the visionary Creative Director of Gucci, has redefined the luxury fashion house with his eclectic and maximalist design approach. Michele's influence extends to setting the creative direction of Gucci, blending tradition with contemporary aesthetics. Within the committee, Michele's powers encompass discussions on luxury fashion, design trends, and the role of high-end brands in shaping industry standards. Outside the committee, he collaborates with artists, influencers, and cultural figures, reflecting his commitment to pushing creative boundaries. Michele's attitude towards past decisions and events reflects a commitment to challenging norms and creating a dynamic and inclusive vision for luxury fashion.

14. Naomi Campbell

Naomi Campbell, a global supermodel and advocate for diversity and inclusion, has been a trailblazer in the fashion industry for decades. Campbell's influence extends beyond the runway, addressing issues related to representation, equality, and diversity. Within the committee, her powers include discussions on diversity in modeling, inclusion, and the industry's responsibility in fostering positive change. Outside the committee, Campbell engages with organizations promoting diversity and advocates for equal opportunities in various industries. Her attitude towards past decisions and events reflects a commitment to using her platform to challenge industry norms and promote a more inclusive and empowering environment.

15. Chris Xu

Chris Xu, a technology and fashion integration specialist, operates at the intersection of fashion and cutting-edge technologies. Known for expertise in incorporating digital advancements into the fashion landscape, Xu's role within the committee likely involves discussions on the impact of technology, digital trends, and innovations in fashion. Outside the committee, Xu collaborates with tech companies and fashion brands, showcasing a commitment to bridging the gap between the two industries. His attitude towards past decisions and events likely reflects a forward-thinking approach, emphasizing the importance of embracing technology to drive positive change in the fashion sector.

16. Helena Helmesson

Helena Helmesson, a dedicated advocate for sustainable fashion practices, holds a prominent role in driving industry-wide sustainability initiatives. Within the committee, Helmesson's influence likely spans discussions on sustainable practices, ethical sourcing, and the environmental impact of fashion. As a leader in the sustainability movement, she collaborates with fashion brands and environmental organizations outside the committee. Helmesson's attitude towards past decisions and events reflects a commitment to promoting environmentally conscious practices and fostering a more sustainable future for the fashion industry.

17. Bob Sternfels

Bob Sternfels, a business and strategy executive with expertise in the fashion industry, likely contributes to discussions on business trends, strategic decision-making, and industry partnerships within the committee. Outside the committee, Sternfels likely engages with fashion brands and business leaders, showcasing a commitment to driving business innovation and growth. His attitude towards past decisions and events likely reflects a strategic and business-oriented perspective, emphasizing the importance of aligning fashion with successful and sustainable business practices.

18. Christoph Schweizer

Christoph Schweizer, a legal expert specializing in the fashion industry, brings his legal acumen to discussions within the committee. His influence likely spans topics such as intellectual property rights, legal protection for designers, and navigating legal challenges within the fashion sector. Outside the committee, Schweizer likely collaborates with fashion brands and legal organizations, reflecting a commitment to ensuring legal compliance and protecting the rights of those within the fashion industry. His attitude towards past decisions and events likely reflects a commitment to upholding legal standards and advocating for the fair treatment of industry professionals.

19. Manny Maceda

Manny Maceda, a specialist in fashion industry management and leadership, likely contributes to discussions on leadership strategies, organizational management, and industry development within the committee. Outside the committee, Maceda likely engages with fashion brands and industry leaders, showcasing a commitment to fostering effective leadership and driving positive change in the sector. His attitude towards past decisions and events likely reflects a strategic and leadership-focused perspective, emphasizing the importance of strong leadership for the success and growth of the fashion industry.

20. Kim Kardashian

Kim Kardashian, a globally recognized fashion entrepreneur and influencer, has made a significant impact on the industry through her various ventures. Within the committee, Kardashian's influence likely spans discussions on the role of influencers in fashion, the intersection of social media and fashion, and business strategies for fashion entrepreneurs. Outside the committee, Kardashian collaborates with fashion brands, entrepreneurs, and engages with her massive audience, showcasing her influence in shaping fashion trends. Her attitude towards past decisions and events likely reflects a business-savvy approach, emphasizing the importance of leveraging influence for positive change in the fashion industry.

21. Gary Gensler

Gary Gensler, a financial and regulatory expert, brings his wealth of experience to discussions within the committee, likely contributing insights into financial trends, regulatory challenges, and economic impacts on the fashion industry. Gensler's influence extends beyond the committee as he collaborates with financial institutions and governmental bodies, reflecting a commitment to ensuring a financially sound and regulated fashion sector. His attitude towards past decisions and events likely reflects a pragmatic approach, emphasizing the importance of financial stability and regulatory compliance in sustaining the industry.

22. Andrew Mayock

Andrew Mayock, a specialist in global supply chain and manufacturing, likely plays a key role in discussions on manufacturing practices, supply chain optimization, and ethical sourcing within the committee. Mayock's influence extends to collaborations with manufacturers and industry stakeholders outside the committee, showcasing a commitment to improving supply chain sustainability and ethical manufacturing. His attitude towards past decisions and events likely reflects a dedication to addressing challenges in the supply chain and promoting responsible manufacturing practices in the fashion industry.

23. Taslima Akhter

Taslima Akhter, a dedicated advocate for labor rights in the fashion industry, likely contributed to discussions within the committee on ethical manufacturing practices, workers' rights, and improving labor conditions. Akhter's influence extends to collaborations with labor rights organizations and fashion brands, reflecting a commitment to ensuring fair and ethical treatment of workers in the industry. Her attitude towards past decisions and events likely reflects a strong ethical stance, emphasizing the importance of prioritizing the well-being of workers in the fashion supply chain.

24. Ayesha Barenblat

Ayesha Barenblat, an expert in sustainable fashion and ethical sourcing, likely plays a pivotal role in discussions within the committee on sustainable practices, environmental impact, and responsible sourcing. Barenblat's influence extends beyond the committee as she collaborates with sustainable fashion initiatives and brands committed to ethical sourcing, showcasing a commitment to fostering a more sustainable and responsible fashion industry. Her attitude towards past decisions and events likely reflects a dedication to promoting environmentally conscious practices and ethical sourcing as essential pillars of the fashion industry's future.

25. Christopher John Rogers

Christopher John Rogers, an emerging fashion designer and creative visionary, likely brings a fresh and innovative perspective to discussions within the committee. As a rising star in the fashion world, Rogers' influence likely spans discussions on design trends, creative expression, and the evolving landscape of the fashion industry. Outside the committee, Rogers collaborates with fellow designers, artists, and influencers, showcasing a commitment to pushing creative boundaries and shaping the future of fashion. His attitude towards past decisions and events likely reflects a forward-thinking approach, emphasizing the importance of creativity and diversity in driving the industry forward.

26. Paris Hilton

Paris Hilton, a prominent celebrity, influencer, and entrepreneur, has leveraged her fame and influence to make her mark across various industries, including fashion. Hilton's celebrity status has enabled her to build connections within the fashion world and collaborate with major brands. Within the committee, her influence likely spans discussions on the role of celebrity in fashion marketing, trends driven by influencers, and the crossover between entertainment and fashion. Outside the committee, Hilton maintains relationships with designers, models, and other public figures, reflecting her strong cultural impact. Her attitude towards past decisions and events underscores a savvy understanding of fame's influence in shaping fashion and consumer tastes. Hilton embraces opportunities to increase her brand power while advocating for causes she supports.